AT Tech Tips: Featuring CAST's AIM Navigator and CAST Webinars

Do your IEP teams need guidance to make decisions about accessible instructional materials (AIM) for their students? Check out the new AIM Navigator online tool from the Center for Applied Special Technology (CAST) website at www.aim.cast.org/experience/decision-making_tools/aim_navigator.

It is well worth the time to experience this great new tool! The Navigator is designed to facilitate team decision-making process for individual students. The Navigator leads the team through a series of question and answer-format steps to help in determining what AIM-related needs students may have, if any. Once the team has gone through the Navigator process, a Student Summary document is created, which can be viewed and printed, or edited at a later time.

Also, please note these upcoming web-based training opportunities from the CAST National Center on Accessible Instructional Materials this fall:

DATE: October 14, 2010

TIME: 1:00 p.m.–2:30 p.m.

EVENT: Access to Instructional Materials for Students with Learning
